The Little City of the Beatitudes

Within the megapolis of Chennai (Madras), amid the enormous industrial complexes and magnificent temples and in the exciting atmosphere of city life, there lies a luminous sliver of truly Salesian goodness.

THE MESSAGE OF THE RECTOR MAJOR DON ÁNGEL FERNÁNDEZ ARTIME, SDB

The story began many years ago following the infamous First World War, in a little town high in the mountains of Italy, in a dignified poor family of thirteen children. One evening, after the children had been served their portion of polenta, one of them realized that their parents did not have any. "Why do you and Daddy have empty plates?" he asked his mom. She answered, "We are not hungry tonight." "Then neither am I hungry," he said, as he ran out into the barnyard in the darkness of the night. His mom caught up to him followed by his dad. It was then that little Orfeo said decisively, "If I become a priest, I will work only for the poor, for those who are hungry, just as I am hungry this evening!"

Orfeo Mantovani entered the Salesian novitiate and left for the Salesian missions in India in 1934. India became his second and most beloved homeland. His bishop, Louis Mathias, was another Salesian giant. He had the beard of the patriarchs and was a courageous man. He immediately granted Fr. Mantovani his wish by entrusting to him the most squalid areas of Madras.

Don Orfeo got to work immediately. On the ground next to a train station, blackened by old coal deposits, he started to gather street urchins, those who were abandoned by everyone and who could not take it any longer. Among them, he launched his challenge to the "black tiger"—the desperate hunger of run-down neighborhoods.

In this way, the Salesian with the meek smile founded, a little at a time as Don Bosco did, his Center for social relief. It had day and night elementary schools, a free clinic and hospital, a leprosarium, and a festive oratory. After he died, another Salesian took his place, then another, and another after him. This is the beauty of a large religious family. The site became a citadel of loving charity.

Just a few weeks ago I entered that citadel in Chennai. For me, it was a magnificent experience. The work bears the name "The Beatitudes" and is known as the Salesian house into which one enters at age three and from which one leaves only at the end of one's life, for the meeting with our Lord. They say here: under Don Bosco's smiling gaze "from the womb to the tomb."

Perhaps what I am writing will surprise you. I admired the work of the Salesians and the service they give to thousands of families, children, teens, young adults, and the elderly. This is all a fruit of the collaboration among three congregations in the Salesian Family: this is its freshness and richness! Here, the Salesians of Don Bosco, the Daughters of Mary Help of Christians, and the congregation of the Sisters of Maria Auxiliatrix, the SMA; all work together.

Beginning at three years of age, children attend the grammar school run by the Daughters of Mary Help of Christians, who also care for teenage girls. The Sisters of Maria Auxiliatrix assist elderly men and women who have no source of welfare and no other place to live out the end of their days. The Salesian priests and brothers care for boys and girls of varying ages as well as taking in street children. Of course, besides all this, they visit the extremely poor families in the area and take care of the parish.

All that happens there makes it seem to be, in a certain sense, a "little Salesian city." I remained profoundly touched and promised them that I would speak of it to make it known because, as we learned from Don Bosco, the good that is done must be made known.

I appreciate and value very much the collaboration that has begun among these three congregations of our Salesian Family. What matters here is not who owns the land or the buildings but the good that is done—and is done together—going out to meet the poorest and most fragile (here we think of those elderly persons who make us understand what frailty and insecurity are). If it were not for that little paradise called "The Beatitudes," which God had in mind for them, frailty, poverty, and insecurity would have the last word.

Whoever reflects on the Village of the Beatitudes cannot but marvel at the results brought about by a little shared love. Every day, food for 300 elderly persons is guaranteed, over 1,000 children are served, and over 15,000 people find relief for various needs, "all at zero cost." Those who enter into this Village of the Beatitudes see with their own eyes these "fifty years of daily miracles." The mottoes that characterize this house are: "Serving those who are ill is the best prayer" (Fr. Mantovani), "No one has the right to be happy all by himself," and "It is possible to give without love, but it is not possible to love without giving."

The people hold that the Village of the Beatitudes is a tangible expression of the Salesians' fidelity to serving the poor and also a concrete manifestation of Divine Providence on their behalf. For the young of the shanty towns, it is an oasis. It is a church, school, playground on which to learn how to play soccer, a gymnasium, and a home.

To think that in Chennai we have fifteen Salesian communities! Among these, there are parishes, middle and high schools, technical schools, oratories, youth centers, social assistance centers for children and youth-at-risk, houses of formation, and even a seminary. The archbishop, the clergy, and the laity, both Christian and non-Christian, greatly appreciate and value the many works carried out by the Salesians, in particular their concern for youth ministry, for the mission carried out for service to the poorest, and for the excellent flagship schools that provide quality instruction for all.

All this speaks to me of the beauty of the Gospel that is passed down throughout the world, often with the strength of charity carried out in silence; it speaks to me of Don Bosco and how important it was to him to reach the most remote corners of the world. I never tire of recalling that our Salesian Family, Don Bosco's sons and daughters, is present today in 134 countries, 72 percent of all the countries in the world—and that this began in a time when there but few Salesians. Notwithstanding the small number, Don Bosco still sent out his first missionary group to Argentina to go to the Italian immigrants and then to reach the indigenous tribes. If we had remained only in Italy, Don Bosco's charism would not be what it is today.

I end this writing with the words spoken one day by a Hindu public official: "If the Christian religion can produce men such as Don Mantovani, it has to be divine."

Affectionately,
Don Angel

Global Compact on Education and Don Bosco's Preventive System

BY FR. TOM DUNNE, SDB

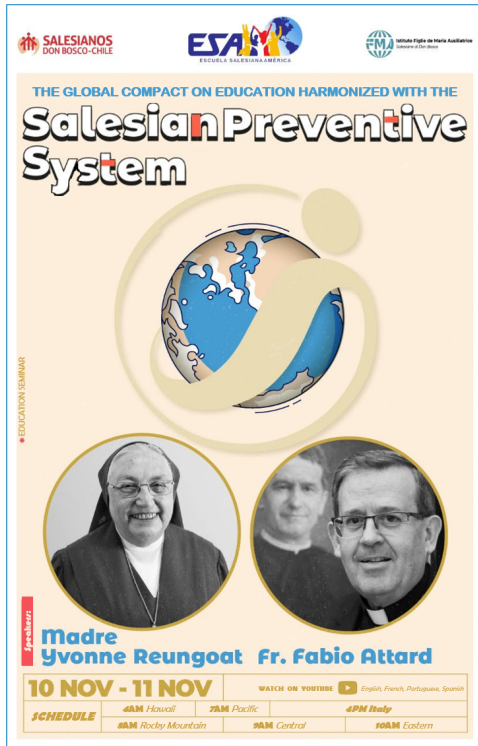

On September 12, 2019, Pope Francis issued an appeal to all those engaged in the field of education to "dialogue on how we are shaping the future of our planet and the need to employ the talents of all, since all change requires an educational process aimed at developing a new universal solidarity and a more welcoming society" (Message for the Launch of the Compact on Education). He followed that appeal by spending the next two years building the foundations and promoting the basic understandings that give form to an education for our people.

On May 10, 2021, Pope Francis welcomed educators and religious leaders from around the world to a dialogue on education at World Teachers' Day sponsored by UNESCO. At that meeting, Pope Francis proposed an initiative of a Global Compact on Education in order "to rekindle our dedication for and with young people, renewing our passion for a more open and inclusive education, including patient listening, constructive dialogue, and better mutual understanding". He invited everyone "to unite our efforts in a broad educational alliance, to form mature individuals capable of overcoming division and antagonism, and to restore the fabric of relationships for the sake of more fraternal humanity."

The Salesian Family is part of that initiative toward a Global Compact on Education. As Don Bosco's followers, we come to this dialogue with a valuable contribution from our Salesian Family tradition: the Preventive System. On Thursday, November 10, and Friday, November 11, we will have an opportunity to take part in a seminar dedicated to exploring the contributions Don Bosco's Preventive System makes to the Global Compact on Education. These contributions are well expressed in Salesian Family documents and effectively applied by Don Bosco's sons and daughters throughout the world.

The seminar on the Global Impact on Education and Don Bosco's Preventive System can be followed on YouTube, on Thursday, November 10, and Friday, November 11, at 10:00 am Eastern time. Please click here or on the image on the next page to register for the workshop.

Salesian Missions Celebrates 75 Years of Mission and Service

BY JULIA ST. CLAIR,
 SUE PROVINCE COMMUNICATIONS DIRECTOR

Salesian Missions has been a cornerstone of the SUE Province—and the entire Congregation—for generations. Seventy-five years ago, Fr. James O’Loughlin started the mission office within a room inside the Salesian Provincial Center in New Rochelle, NY. He would go on to be the first director of Salesian Missions and was succeeded by Fr. A. Joseph Louis six years later.

In 1959, Fr. Edward Cappelletti became Salesian Missions’ third director. Throughout his 32 years in the role, Fr. Cappelletti carried Salesian Missions into further prominence. It was also during this time that the office moved into its current building, which overlooks Echo Bay, and a new office of the Agency for International Development opened in Washington, D.C.

Truly, Fr. Cappelletti dedicated his entire life to Salesian Missions and helped the office to settle down. After his retirement in 1997, he remained a beloved member of the SUE Province’s New Rochelle community and Salesian Missions family up until his death in 2013.

“He was such a presence here, even after retirement,” Joann Oliva, executive secretary to Salesian Missions’ current and ninth director, Fr. Gus Baek, reflected. “He was such a nice man who was always on the grounds and occasionally offered Mass for employees in the mission office chapel.”

Today, Salesian Missions is recognized internationally for its service to millions of the world’s poorest and neediest children and families. “It’s important for us to remember our mission statement wherever we help our missionaries and mission projects,” Fr. Gus noted.

Salesian Missions has a lot of chapel projects that oversee the construction of many chapels built each year. These chapels are built in remote areas in mission territories, such as jungles and swamps. Additionally, Fr. Gus recently approved drilling a borewell at a school and parish community, which will provide clean water for thousands of people in Lilongwe, Malawi, in Zambia.

A few years ago, Fr. Gus traveled to Africa and saw the need for humanitarian support firsthand. "There's a great need for food," Fr. Gus implored. "In Tanzania, children eat dry corn at lunchtime, and I was sad to see that was their lunch." Fr. Gus would love to one day establish a cornbread bakery program for all African Salesian institutes.

Another important cause close to Fr. Gus' heart is education, especially in Salesian institutes in need of updated equipment. "There are schools that currently operate with outdated machines from the 1950s and 1960s," Fr. Gus lamented. "You cannot operate technical institutes without good machines." It is Fr. Gus' dream to fix this and provide institutes with updated technology. "I will ask my non-governmental organization (NGO) contacts in Korea to work together with Salesian Missions. They can get machines from a company and ship them. Then, Salesian Missions would help with shipping and costs."

This dream to better equip and more adequately provide for the schools so that they can grow is something Fr. Gus would love Salesian Missions to accomplish in another 75 years. "It would be wonderful to have a more systematic higher education system," he beamed. "Some graduates give back as they contribute and work at Salesian institutes. The children we work with in the future now can grow to be leaders in society and work with Salesian Missions."

Fr. Gus remains grateful to Fr. O'Loughlin and everyone who first began Salesian Missions' work 75 years ago. Don Bosco would be very happy to see the office carry his spirit and mission through their work with poor, young people. "He reminded us to always remember our Salesian identity, the Preventive System, and to be good and upright citizens," Fr. Gus remarked.

Salesian Missions will host a 75th Anniversary Celebration on Tuesday, November 22, at the Greentree Country Club in New Rochelle. Currently, the Rector Major is scheduled to be in attendance, and Fr. Mike Conway, Provincial Treasurer will be the MC for the evening.

"It's going to be a good time," Mrs. Oliva exclaimed! Fr. Gus added, "Indeed, it will truly be a momentous occasion with smiles and blessings shining down from Don Bosco, St. Artemides Zatti, Fr. O'Loughlin, Fr. Cappeletti, and all those in the Salesian Family who watch over us from the Salesian Garden."

An Interview with Br. Tom Sweeney on the Canonization of St. Artemides Zatti

BY FR. TOM DUNNE, SDB

1.) How did you feel when you were invited to take part in the canonization of St. Artemides Zatti?

Well, I was totally surprised. I didn't expect it. At an anniversary celebration, I received a couple of gifts. I didn't open these gifts until I came home. In an envelope, I found a card with an invitation from the Rector Major for all the Salesian Brothers to go to Rome to attend the canonization of Br. Artemides Zatti. The Rector Major was paying all the expenses of lodging and transportation to the different places we were going to visit! As I read the invitation, I thought of calling my sister, a Daughter of Charity. I said to her, "You are not going to believe this!" After I shared with her the good news, she said: "Holy Mackerel! This is amazing what is going to happen to you." As I hung up, I realized that this was a once-in-a-lifetime gift! For me, going to the canonization of a Salesian Brother in St. Peter's Square was a mind-blowing experience.

2.) You had the unusual blessing of celebrating the canonization of a Salesian Brother at the same time as your golden anniversary (50 years) of profession as a Salesian Brother. Did the coming together of those two celebrations open you to a special pilgrimage experience?

For me, the experience of celebrating the canonization and my 50 years of profession was both emotional and spiritually life-changing. Visiting different places such as the Basilica of Mary Help of Christians or a museum, taking part in the canonization and the Mass of the Rector Major on the Saturday before the canonization, and being with 3000 Salesians at a private audience with the Pope really all deeply affected me. I came to realize what has happened in my life and what God has given me to help others. It truly was an experience that will really stay with me for the rest of my life.

3.) You were accompanied on this trip by a number of Salesian Brothers from our province. Did being a part of that brotherhood add any significance to your experience?

Everyone from the province bonded very well together and got to know each other. However, getting together with 700 Salesian Brothers from different parts of the world had an impact on us. When we were with them, we saw that there was another side of our vocation in that Don Bosco brought us together with young people. That realization made an impact on us. Through this experience, we realized how much our vocation means to us. We realized that we have been gifted with a beautiful vocation as a Salesian Brother.

4.) What do you think young people need to know about the vocation of the Salesian Brother from the perspective of St. Artemides Zatti's life?

One thing that really stood out to me was accepting and doing the will of God. No matter what our vocation is, I think that's part of our vocation. As a Salesian Brother, or being with the Salesians, we know that, by doing God's will, He takes over. If I accept the will of God, He gives us different graces and ways of reaching other people. We are becoming better than we are, and

*Banner of St. Artemides Zatti hangs on the day of his canonization in St. Peter's Square

He's using us to help spread His word to others. I think in that particular area, through the example of St. Zatti, I learned the importance of doing the will of God, accepting it, and allowing Him to work with me to help others to become and embody their full potential.

5.) What is the most precious memory or image that you brought back with you from the canonization experience?

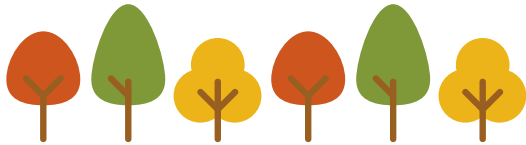

Two memories really clicked with me. The first was when we attended the Mass with the brothers and the Rector Major. After communion, I realized what had taken place over the last 50 years of my profession as a Salesian Brother. As I looked at St. Artemides Zatti, I realized what he had done through working with God in different ways and showing that he saw Jesus in everything he did, every person he touched, especially at the hospital. As I gazed around at the 700 Salesian Brothers in that church, I realized that Jesus was in every one of us. By realizing that truth, we became one.

The second memory was when I went to the Don Bosco Museum in Valdocco. I went into the youth ministry section of the museum. I sat down, and I looked there are three pictures. One of them was Don Bosco's dream at the age of nine and what took place with that dream. That picture drew me back to the day when I entered. I wasn't too sure if I would go on. But I was willing to discern. I finally made the decision to enter after reading a passage in a book that asked, "Which would you rather have: a number of your own children? Or thousands upon thousands of spiritual children." That experience made me realize that, over the past 50 years, I've met thousands and thousands of young people. I realized that, by meeting them, they changed my life and helped me grow in my vocation.

6.) Is there anything you want to share with the Salesian Family in this province from your "pilgrimage" to St. Artemides Zatti's canonization?

The trip truly was a time of reflection. Looking back at my 50 years, praying and renewing myself for what comes next. It also brought out my emotions realizing how God has used me in helping the young in many ways in growing in their faith. I pray that I have done a good job—no—a great job with His help and assistance in bringing the young to Him so that He can walk with them in spreading His message to others.

An Experience of a Lifetime
Reflection of a Pilgrim, Pt. 2

BY SR. MYRIAM MEUS, FMA

To travel to the heart of the Church is an experience of a lifetime. During our Salesian Family Pilgrimage to Italy last summer, we visited many historical and holy places. I am still in awe whenever I think of these grounds. As a child, I often heard of the miraculous Corporal, but I never thought I would one day witness this Sacred Corporal being exposed and processed throughout the streets of the city of Orvieto in Umbria. That was the place where our pilgrimage took us on the eve of Corpus Christi Sunday (in Italy, it is called Corpus Domini). I did not only have to chance to adore Christ in this Holy Miracle but to also witness how this miracle that happened hundreds of years ago still brings people from all parts of the world together. On the night of Corpus Christi Sunday, the city of Orvieto was fully alive with pilgrims of every age and race. In the procession of the Sacred Corporal, I observed the different economical classes being represented, from the ordinary farmer to the extraordinary dignitaries. All of them came with the same purpose—to see the sacred blood of Jesus in the miraculous corporal one more time. As I looked at the crowd waiting for the Sacred Corporal to pass by, I reflected on how God often uses miracles to assemble people together and strengthen His Church. This experience has given me a sense of the bigger Church and strengthened my own faith and call to serve His Church.

Our journey continued in the town of Assisi, the birthplace of Sts. Francis and Clare and where the tomb of Bl. Carlo Acutis is found. As we entered the Basilica of St. Francis of Assisi, where Holy Masses were celebrated in different languages in different corners, we felt our souls on the mountaintop with Jesus. I truly sensed that heaven and earth have met in that place and the only language necessary is that of Faith in God. Assisi is peaceful and awe-filled from the beauty of nature itself to the way that God worked with the lives of these Saints. Two great saints who had abandoned their earthly wealth to embrace lives of austerity for the sake of the kingdom of God. I witnessed a renewed sense of sacredness among our pilgrims upon hearing the stories of these saints. We walked in the city, prayed in the Basilica of St. Clare, visited her tomb, and once again witnessed how Faith brings people together.

We then stopped at the Parish Church of St. Mary Major, where the Sanctuary of the Spogliazione of St. Francis of

The entrance to the medieval city of Assisi

Assisi and the tomb of Carlo Acutis are located. This is a young and modern saint so close to our time. I saw a mixture of hope, wonder, and holy fear in the pilgrims' faces at the sight of this young man's corpse lying down as if he were sleeping. There, I prayed for all young people that Bl. Acutis might infuse the same love that he had for Jesus in the Eucharist in them. I prayed that young people may use the power of the internet to spread the Good News of Christ-like Bl. Acutis did in his lifetime on earth. I reflected on the faithfulness of Christ to His Church in the lives of so many men and women who totally surrendered to His grace. Bl. Carlo is a modern example that tells all of us that we can be holy at any age.

These places have invited us to realize that holiness is possible for each of us. God has made available all the graces that we need to be saints. When we look around and see God's marvels in his saints, we can say, "it is possible for me, too."

And to crown our time in Italy, our journey took us to the great city of Rome.

Salesian Family Day in Montreal

The Salesian Family of Quebec gathered at the Don Bosco Youth Leadership Center in Montreal on Saturday, October 22, for the annual Salesian Family Day. This year's theme was "As the Yeast in Today's Human Family."

Fr. Richard Authier gave an explanation of the Strenna for 2023 and the meaning of the word "yeast." Sr. Francine followed with a further explanation of the Strenna through a video presentation with the help of Sr. Lise Guitard. Fr. Alain Leonard presented a sketch on the Recipe for Holiness, and Pierre Laroque spoke about the figure of St. Artemides Zatti. After lunch, there was a presentation on integral ecology, followed by the celebration of the Eucharist. Fr. Luc Lantagne presided.

About 40 SDBs, FMAs, ADMA, Salesian Cooperators, and Past Pupils attended the event. They came from Montreal, Sherbrooke, and other parts of Quebec. Fr. Dennis Donovan, director of the Marian Shrine in Stony Point, NY was among the guests. The oldest was Br. Gerard Richard, age 99, from Sherbrooke!
